How do you free people to be responsible, creative and independent in their thinking?

THE COURSE

Facilitating a group in a Thinking Environment generates the best thinking from all members of the group. It is an experience of energy, dignity, self-esteem and pleasure for everyone. Thoughtful facilitation frees people to be both responsible, efficient and creative in their collaborative work.

Through input, practice and observation, the Foundation Course generates a quality of learning that is immediately applicable.

Come and join me in this learning adventure!

This two day programme is an intensive, experiential course designed for a maximum of 10 participants. The course content explores the theory and practice of the Ten Components of the Thinking Environment and its use in groups and teams using the building blocks of Thinking Pairs, Dialogue, Rounds and Open Discussion. You will see the Ten Components transform these interactions, bringing new effectiveness and intelligence to them all.

This programme is a prerequisite for the Time To Think Facilitator Certification Course

YOUR LEARNING

You will experience the four Full Applications

Who is this course for?

People who lead or are part of creative teams, executives and managers, coaches, mentors, teachers, professional advisers, HR and OD professionals, health and other consultants;
all those who want to become skilled in creating the ideal conditions in which thinking will flourish, and/or to deepen existing facilitation skills.

I have 30 years of experience, facilitating groups and individuals both in global companies (from board to management level) and in NGOs and non-profit organisations all over India, China, Africa, North America and Europe.

Diversity and Difference ignites our thinking & creativity - Time to Think's applications as taught in this course foster and amplify the importance and expression of both.

What drives me is to help people, businesses and organisations see who and what they are capable of being - Time to Think is one of my main tools to do so!

THE FACILITATOR

Originally from Germany, I have been living in South Africa for almost 20 years. I am a leadership coach, mountain and vision quest guide and have been working as a Time to Think consultant for several years - training the Thinking Environment is close to my heart. It has touched me deeply to work with hundreds of people (during the pandemic: online). Now I am delighted to be able to offer the courses again in person and now for the first time in Berlin due to the generous invitation of the C*Space team.
